

- Program takes Excel files as an input to create a course schedule
- Use parallel programming to improve execution speed of the program
- Convert the program from a desktop application to a web application